

Cambridge Technical Communicators

The experts in marketing and technical communication

What's unique about CTC?

Location and flexibility

Based in Cambridge, we provide local availability to companies in our region and across the UK.

We have access to a UK-wide network of experienced technical authors, graphic designers, web developers and translators, enabling us to be flexible in responding to our client's needs and cost-effective in our pricing models and delivery.

International experience

CTC has worked with leading brands in financial services, telecommunications, utilities, law, local government, software development and engineering.

We understand the local business environment and can advise clients when working on projects that involve localisation or co-operation with offices in the US, Europe, the Middle East, the Far East and South Africa.

A complete solution

We offer the full resources needed to support your technical or marketing communication project. For example, if delivering a set of technical guides, we can also provide marketing collateral, manage the translation, build a website to host the documentation and arrange for printing and packaging.

Our service provides a cost-effective and professional approach to your technical and marketing communication projects
